

How do 15 million Americans help feed 6 billion around the world?

America's food and beverage manufacturers – creating jobs, supporting communities and fighting hunger

In 30,000 facilities across America – from small towns to big cities – food and beverage companies generate $1.1 trillion in sales for our nation's economy. We're the biggest source of U.S. manufacturing jobs, and support 15 million American jobs from farm to fork. We are leaders in global trade, exporting $50 billion in products to 215 countries around the world.

While feeding people is our business, it also helps define who we are. Every year, America's food manufacturers, retailers and restaurants help feed 49 million Americans who are food insecure by donating $1 billion to fight hunger. After all, our contribution shouldn't stop at the bottom line.
